

Halliburton marks centenary with grants

Eight non-profit organisations based throughout Halliburton Company's Asia Pacific operational region will receive US$10,000 (RM42,100) in grants each by the company to mark its 100th anniversary.

Founded in 1919, Halliburton is celebrating its centenary with stakeholders who helped the company reach this historic milestone – its employees, customers and local communities.

"The Halliburton spirit of giving started with our founder Erle P. Halliburton, who long ago established our company's commitment to honouring the communities where we live and work," says Halliburton Asia Pacific Region senior vice president Sid Whyte. "We are happy to continue his legacy and contribute to nonprofit organisations whose work benefits those in our region's key operating areas."

Halliburton Company chairman, president and CEO Jeff Miller (sixth from left) presents US$10,000 grant to MyKasih Foundation

The Halliburton 100 years (HAL100) grant recipients in the Asia Pacific region include the organisations whose goals are aligned with the Halliburton Pillars of Giving: STEM-related education, environment, health and safety and social service.